The Book of Songs as the first collection of songs in China have been annotated for many times, however, most of the scholars made research on it as a Confucian classic. The author restoring the original status of the songs appreciates it as a literary and artist work, makes artistic analysis on the explanatory notes of each chapter and adds rhythmic pronunciation after the annotations of each chapter to help readers learn the correct reading. The book sets up its own point of view while combining the achievements of generations of scholars.
