Medicine is news. There is constant public interest in health and disease; in medical miracles and in breakthroughs; in medical disasters, failures and malpraxis ; in deficiencies and defects of health services; and in the rising costs of health care. Medicine is 'big business'. Physicians come out near the top money earners in most medical care systems. In the United Kingdom the National Health Service (NHS) now costs over [6000 million a year ($ 800 million), a free service that costs every British man, woman and child [120 a year ($216) in direct and indirect taxes. But this is less than the [500 ($900) a year that medical care costs each person in USA and West Germany. In developed countries health care costs are approaching 10% of the gross national product (GNP). It is big business also in that in Britain the NHS is one of the largest employers; about 1 million Britons work as employees of the NHS, caring for the other 54 millions and in the USA the numbers are 5 million caring for 2.5 millions. The provision of health services is full of problems and dilemmas. These problems and dilemmas cross all national boundaries. All countries share the same problems and dilemmas. Problems of objectives, of standards, of effectiveness and efficiency, and problems of relations between the medical profession, the public and government. Medical care still is full of mystique.
